Inquiring Reporter

"Do you think youngsters today have too much spending money?" This conversational topic was asked by the Inquiring Reporter this week. The replies follow:

Earl Orashan, 471 W. 8th St., designer-builder: "In general, I don't believe students have too much pocket money to spend. However, I believe much pressure is upon them to spend what they do have extravagantly. If the money is just given to them, any amount can be too much. If they earn it, they will eventually want to spend it more wisely."

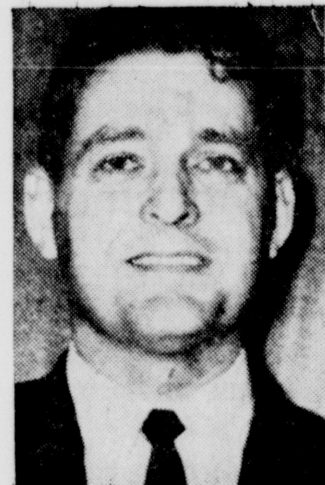

Keith Krepps, 1802 Cleveland St., truck driver, Ohio Edison Co.: "I very definitely do. They also have too much ease getting the money. This leads to other problems, including immoral behavior. I believe that giving children too much money leads to disrespect and lower regard of parents and elders. The children take advantage of everything they can get."

Mrs. Alfred Konnerth, 165 Highland Ave., sixth grade teacher, McKinley School: "Most children have too much money to spend today, and they don't earn a penny to learn its value. They are given money for good report cards, good behavior, baby-sitting at home and the like, when parents should expect these things instead of paying a reward for them."

Mrs. Heinz Meine, 641 Superior Ave., bookkeeper, Penney Co.: "No. Adults today make much more money than their parents did. Our standards have changed and, as long as we keep the children within reasonable demands, giving them money is okay. It's all part of progress. The important thing is to teach them that money does not grow on trees, but comes from hard work."

John H. Liggett, doctor of veterinary medicine, Lisbon Rd.: "I feel that the children of today have higher monetary requirements. It is the parents' responsibility to see that money is made available on an earned basis. Children need the experience of handling their own money."

Mrs. John Volio, Chestnut Grove Rd., housewife: "No. I don't think the majority of children from average families do. However, there are always exceptions and they are, of course, more noticeable. There is a need for all school age children today to be handling more money than was necessary a generation ago, due to school cafeterias, milk money, library fees, etc., and I think this is good training when limitations are set as to how much the child may spend."

Mrs. Harold Herrmann, 2069 Southeast Blvd., housewife: "No. I don't think so. Modern parents like to shower their youngsters with all the luxuries they failed to get. Our way of living has changed greatly in one past generation. Consequently, the money requirements have grown with the change in time. It is true that children of today get almost everything they want without asking for it."

J. J. Pales, 294 Benton Rd., foreman, Salem Label Co.: "Yes. A large percentage of our youth are supplied with and have too much money to fully appreciate its value. However, there are also those who have too little."

Rights Debate Cloture Stalled

Amendments Vote
Due Early In Week

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate leaders restrained from filing a petition to end the 72-day civil rights debate pending the outcome today of a proposal to vote on three important amendments early next week.

The agreement was advanced late Friday by Republicans. But action was deferred overnight at the urging of Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., leader of the Southern forces.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said if the agreement is accepted it may shorten the marathon debate.

But should the agreement—which requires unanimous consent—be rejected, he added, a petition to invoke the Senate's debate-limiting cloture rule will be filed as previously planned. If there is no agreement and the cloture petition is filed today it would automatically come to a vote one hour after the Senate convenes Tuesday. Adoption of cloture would require a two-thirds majority, or 67 votes if all 100 senators vote. Indications are that the vote would be extremely close.

The move to get a vote on three amendments to the bill before a cloture showdown was initiated by a group of Republicans led by Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa, chairman of the Senate's GOP Policy Committee.

Nixon, Goldwater To Attend Meeting Ike To Speak At Governors' Confab

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Gen Dwight D. Eisenhower gets an opportunity at the 6th annual Governors' Conference here to have a final say about the GOP presidential nomination.

The odds are about even that the former president will decline—as he has before—to give any solace to so-called Eisenhower Republicans wringing their hands about the prospect that Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona may be about to latch onto the nomination.

Man Arrested In Alliance Murder

Glenn Lamp, Unemployed, Confesses

Will Be Charged
In Slaying of
Lou Nagy, Druggist

BULLETIN
ALLIANCE—Glenn Edward Lamp, 24, of 608 Columbia St. confessed today to the April 25 slaying of druggist Louis Nagy and Police Chief Donald Cowen said the filing of murder charges was expected momentarily.

ALLIANCE — Diligent police work and patient checking out of many leads, plus cooperation from other police departments, has led to the almost certain solution of the six-week-old Lou Nagy murder case here.

A 24-year-old unemployed father of two is being held in Alliance city jail and probably will be charged today with murder in the April 25 shooting of the Alliance druggist.

Police Chief Donald Cowen, who flew to Washington and returned within a 12-hour period Friday, said today that a number of loose ends must be completed before the case can be marked "closed."

He said that murder charges will be filed as soon as possible against the suspect, who was arrested Friday and booked at city jail on an open charge. Pending the filing of the charge, the name of the suspect was not released.

Chief Cowen reported that his trip to Washington was made to have the Federal Bureau of Investigation check new evidence uncovered by police during the night-long re-check of evidence at the police station, and at other locations in and outside the city.

He termed the trip to Washington "very fruitful," but added that to reveal at this time the nature of the positive new evidence could be detrimental to the case.

The name of the man facing the murder charge was brought

Pup Falls Off Seat, Driver's Auto Hits Pole

A puppy indirectly caused a minor accident on the corner of State St. and S. Lincoln Ave. Friday at 1:45 p.m.

Miss Janet D. Shears, 23, of 976 S. Lincoln told police that she was making a right turn from State onto S. Lincoln when the dog in her car fell to the floor. She said she reached down to pick up the pup and the car struck a pole.

Miss Shears was taken to City Hospital for treatment of lacerations of the scalp. She was charged with unsafe operation of a motor vehicle.

A city truck caused minor damage to a vehicle operated by Gordon E. Roessler, 37, of 338 Fair Ave. at 12:45 p.m. Friday when he was going south on N. Lincoln and had stopped with a line of traffic for the red light at State St.

City Service Director James E. Feiler, 46, of 450 Jefferson St., the driver of the truck, stopped behind the Roessler vehicle and then attempted to get into the left turn lane. An approaching northbound vehicle caused Feiler to pull back to the right lane, striking the Roessler auto. Feiler was charged by police with following too closely.

D-Day 20 Years Past

Old Soldiers Honor Fallen Comrades At Normandy

OMAHA BEACH (AP) — Old soldiers joined in homage today to their fallen wartime comrades on the 20th anniversary of the mightiest invasion in history.

They gathered on the silent Normandy beaches where on this day two decades ago began the final assault on the Nazi empire.

But even though the din of battle has long since died down, old controversies raged as strongly as ever.

Britain's Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery assailed his old commander-in-chief, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme Allied commander in Europe during World War II.

On a British commemorative television program Friday night Montgomery said: "I do not believe that Eisenhower ever really understood the strategy of the Normandy campaign. He seemed to me to get the whole thing muddled up."

Eisenhower publicly ignored the remarks. A spokesman for the former U.S. president's farm in Gettysburg, Pa., said Eisenhower would have no comment.

American, British, French, Canadian, Belgian and Norwegian official delegations took part in simple ceremonies at key points along the invasion area.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commander of the American assault forces on D-Day, led the U.S. delegation. He was to be joined by the chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, who parachuted into Normandy with his 101st Airborne Division on invasion day in 1944.

Hundreds of other American, British and Canadian veterans of D-Day revisited the old battleground on their own. Some were joined in the pilgrimage by their wives and children. They wandered over the beaches and hedgerowed fields, trying to recollect for their families personal memories of the great battle.

The official ceremonies were held Friday in the British sector — Gold, Juno and Sword beaches — ending with a military parade of the old Allies and fireworks display at Hermanville-sur-Mer.

The program today concentrated on the America area — Utah and Omaha beaches — and the village of Sainte-Mere-Eglise, on which U.S. paratroopers descended in the biggest air assault attempted up to then.

The day began with a simple memorial service at Saint-Laurent-sur-Mer Cemetery overlooking Omaha Beach, where 9,841 U.S. dead are buried. Enshrined on the wall of a memorial building are the names of 1,557 soldiers, sailors and airmen missing in the Normandy invasion.

In a similar ceremony Friday, British veterans with medals pinned on their civilian dress stood side by side in the rain with school children, nuns and generals and admirals in uniform at the British cemetery at Douvres-la-Delivrande.

They sang hymns, recited the Lord's Prayer and stood stiffly at attention as the anthems of France, Canada, the United States and Britain were played.

The ordeal of D-Day was vividly recalled to American television audiences Friday night by Eisenhower in a 90-minute interview with Walter Cronkite of the Columbia Broadcasting System. The interview was filmed last August in Britain and on the Normandy beaches.

Eisenhower described in intimate detail the key actions of the battle.

He also told of his decision to go ahead with the invasion on June 6, 1944, despite predictions of precarious weather, and emphasized that the landing was a team operation.

He admitted with a smile that he had prepared a statement in advance accepting blame in event of a defeat.

Eisenhower paid tribute to the British for conceiving an artificial harbor at Arromanches where vital supplies were landed. He also denied he had been critical of the British for holding out in front of Caen, saying Montgomery had kept the pressure on the strategic city.

As Eisenhower viewed the American graves at Saint-Laurent-sur-Mer, he said: "I devoutly hope that we will never again have to see such scenes as these. These people gave us a chance, and they bought time for us, so that we can do better than we have before."

Montgomery's television remarks stirred criticism from newspapers and listeners in Britain. Some listeners called the British Broadcasting Corp. to check if they had heard correctly. Montgomery also criticized what he called an American tendency to claim credit for the invasion.

Montgomery said the Norman-

The three county courts heard 269 criminal cases, and 85 civil cases were filed during the month.

Sheriff, constable and city police fees amounted to $197.

All were cited by the state highway patrol except Gibson who was cited by Wellsville police.

LUTHERANS BELIEVE...

Good works are necessary.

They are necessary because they express the Christian faith. They do not earn merit in God's sight, nor gain heaven.

How come?

Well, a Christian is a Christ-ian, or a Christ follower, or a "little Christ."

So, the Christian must follow in Christ's steps—loving, feeding, healing.

These are good works.

These works reveal the love of God through His people; these works lead people to Him; these works are a fulfillment of Christ's statement that His followers would do greater works than He did.

Good works come after faith. They grow out of faith.

A person who has faith in Jesus Christ simply can't help doing good works, in order that Christ might be shared with the world. Faith without works is dead.

An excellent slogan for the Christian might be HAVE FAITH—MUST WORK.

DEAR HELOISE: When we freeze peas, we find it much easier to blanch the peas while they are still in the pods. Just place the peas in a French fries basket and drop them in a large kettle of boiling water for five minutes. Cool in ice water. Then drain. By pressing on the pod, the peas will pop out... a beautiful green.

This sure beats sitting and hulling; and then, they still have to be blanched before freezing. My daughter used this method when preparing just enough for one meal, and then cooks as usual.

MRS. T.M.L.

DEAR HELOISE: In the summertime carry a piece of white chalk in your purse to touch up white shoes or to cover a spot on a white dress! Chalk may be bought at any dime store. It's what children use on the blackboard.

ers who have stubborn diaper pins, I find the cake of bath soap on the bathinette is handy. Just stick the pins in the soap during the change of the diaper, and slip into the diaper easily.

A cake of soap is also a good place to store extra pins.

ELOISE BROWN.

DEAR HELOISE: For those who want to wash a wet mop in the washing machine but don't know how:

Remove the handle, push the string mop into an old nylon stocking, and tie the top of the stocking.

Run it through the regular wash cycle. The nylon stocking prevents the lint from escaping, and the mop comes out beautiful clean!

Arithmetic of Nomination

The looming fact in Republican presidential politics now becomes Sen. Barry Goldwater's huge delegate count—at least 438 first-ballot votes plus the prospect of picking up another 145 to 190 votes before the party convention.

With 655 votes needed to land the nomination and the psychology of the leading position working in his favor, Sen. Goldwater has a first-ballot nomination in sight.

Delegates to the nominating convention are the hard-core realists of the party. They are the people who put up the money and give the time to make the party organization work. They are not interested in public opinion polls and guesswork approaches to political problems.

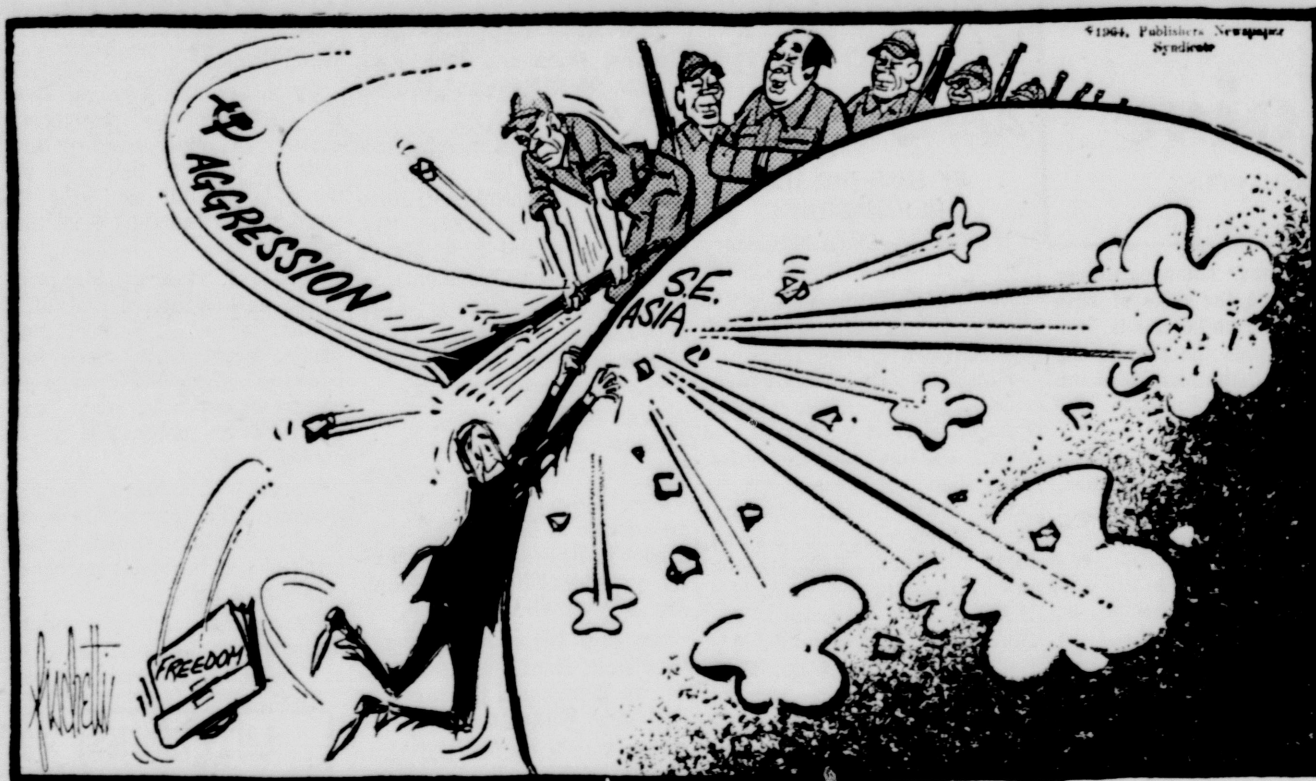

primed and ready to be elected if nominated by the Republicans. Harry S. Truman was not seeking renomination. Whoever his successor as party leader was going to be would have to offer himself as a political sacrifice to the nation's most popular man of the hour.

Thanks to convention hanky-panky with contested Southern delegations, candidate Eisenhower came within five votes of the nomination on the first ballot roll call—595 against 500 for Sen. Taft, 81 for Earl Warren, 20 for Harold Stassen, 10 for Douglas MacArthur. Following the roll call, Stassen threw 19 of his 20 votes to Eisenhower, the other delegates got the message and the official Eisenhower count was zoomed up to 845.

A MOTION to make the choice of Eisenhower unanimous carried, despite plainly audible "No" votes throughout the Chicago Stockyards auditorium.

That was the way the Eastern steamroller chugged to triumph in 1952. The Eastern wing of the Republican party, with Henry Cabot Lodge in a key role, had done it again, as it had done it before with Thomas E. Dewey and Wendell L. Willkie. It was if a pattern had been established that no other Republican faction could set aside. But today there is a new faction, and it is riding high.

In 1964 there is no Eisenhower, no Dewey, no Willkie. There is only Sen. Goldwater within reaching distance of the Republican nomination and no one within reaching distance of Sen. Goldwater.

"We Have Our Own Way of Launching Man Into Outer Space"

Eager for the Showdown

By VICTOR RIESEL

Labor's political analysts are predicting now that Barry Goldwater will fall 100 votes short of nomination at the Republican National Convention. But the union chiefs, being hard-headed realists, realize their wish may be "fate" to that thought. So they are gearing up a massive campaign machine to do him battle in virtually all of the nation's 175,000 precincts.

Victor Riesel

Thus, if the senator is nominated, he will become the first candidate for the U.S. presidency in modern times to be completely boycotted by the country's labor leaders and the first willing to challenge the union leadership without wooing any of them.

If we delimit "modern times" at Calvin Coolidge—40 years ago—we find that both he and Herbert Hoover had strong labor backing in John L. Lewis. The latter often said he had greater entrance to the White House under them than during the first years of Franklin D. Roosevelt whom the miners did not endorse until 1936.

THAT YEAR Alf Landon had a Republican labor committee campaigning for him under the Carpenters' "big" Bill Hutcheson. In 1940 Mr. Lewis swung to Wendell Willkie. Four years later—and again in 1948—Tom Dewey had scores of unions behind him.

Dwight Eisenhower always had contact with liberal labor leaders, including the CIO's Sidney Hillman, who launched the CIO's Political Action Committee and was the first to boom "Ike for President."

In '48 labor chiefs, including Walter Reuther, wanted Mr. Eisenhower to run for president on the Democratic ticket. Finally, Dick Nixon had cordial relations with many union men, including the Steelworkers' president Dave McDonald. During the '60 campaign he had labor support stretching from New York to Hawaii.

THE PHILOSOPHICAL differences between Goldwater and the labor leaders are vast and were widened by the California primary. They threw considerable weight into the drive to stop him in California.

The National Labor Committee for Rockefeller, operating out of New York City, sent 87,000 pieces of literature into the state in the final weeks of the primary campaign. At the end, as many as 6,000 pieces a day were being mailed to labor men from the committee headquarters in the Hotel Roosevelt.

During the last week in May, the committee chairman, Lee Minton, himself an AFL-CIO vice president, sent telegrams to all national union presidents urging them to stir their California locals into action against Goldwater. And action there was: Joe Moersch, veteran head of the Hod Carriers and Common Laborers, replied that he was alerting his locals.

The building and construction trades organizations worked militantly for the New York governor. A strong section of the Carpenters' Union in Los Angeles reported it was fighting Goldwater hard. Dave Sullivan's Building Service Employees' Union sent word that it was papering apartment houses with "Rocky's" literature and elevator men were electioneering everywhere on the job.

AT THE LAST minute the labor committee sent special wires to 400 selected union officials in the San Francisco Bay area. Not the least part of the Rockefeller labor campaign was visual—12,000 2x4-foot posters for union day rooms, as well as several score of movie and slide projectors.

There were other unions in the fight and other publicity media such as radio programs paid for by the labor men. All this went into what was more than an effort to get the unionists who were registered Republicans to vote against Goldwater.

Democratic union chiefs and even some elements of the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education (COPE) were in the fray, campaigning against Goldwater, among Republicans with no union affiliations.

The pattern was similar to that which won for Rockefeller in Oregon. One labor official said at the time of the primary there: "We had the state covered like an umbrella for Rocky."

IT CAN BE expected that the labor people will be active against Barry Goldwater at the GOP national convention in San Francisco. This effort will begin during the second week in July, when AFL-CIO President George Meany offers labor's suggestions to the convention platform committee.

Much of the labor program the Goldwater people will reject. Never before has the issue been clearer. This does not appear to worry the Arizona senator. He's eager for the showdown. So are the labor chiefs.

Do They Wake Up Screaming?

There must be a nightmare shared by leading foreign policy experts in the State Department and White House.

The nightmare must occur after a rebuff by French President de Gaulle, an icy rejoinder from Downing Street to a proposal for a trade embargo, a scathing remark by a recently emerged African strong man, the snick of a knife blade being snapped open in the dark alleys of Middle Eastern intrigue, or the hollow frustration of swamp-floundering in Southeast Asia.

In the nightmare, Uncle Sam—in the person of the foreign policy maker involved—is standing all alone on a rocky pinnacle with the cold wind whistling past his skinny shanks.

HE HAS THE nightmarish sensation of being blown off the pinnacle into a dark abyss below, already full of once virtuous countries that toppled from diplomatic grace and now like to make fun of old Uncle's solitary eminence.

nd Sam is calling, calling, calling . . . But no one below is listening, listening, listening . . .

Even if they were, how could they help him, help him, help him, because only he stands on the pinnacle and all of them have fallen, fallen, fallen . . .

It is not that Sam has no friends. It is not that everybody hates him. It is only that he has no peers.

Those who would like to be his allies in happier circumstances have been unable to meet his behavior standards. The whole world is out of step, all but Sam. There he stands on a pinnacle, calling for help because he feels as if he is about to become air-borne and it scares him.

It must be tough to wake up from a thing like this and trudge off to another hard day's work, chiding other national powers for not having the same clear vision and blameless motives that guide the United States infallibly in its relentless efforts to create a world beyond its own reproach.

Children Ahead!

Now that the school term has ended, children are everywhere—in yards, on sidewalks and in the streets.

Motorists will have to be doubly cautious.

It's not that there are more children, but children are more carefree than when they are walking to school and are much more in evidence every hour of the day, instead of the customary 8:30 a. m. and 3:30 p. m. periods when drivers are accustomed to seeing them.

It's assumed that parents caution their youngsters when they go out to play, but the responsibility for their safety must be shared by motorists. We don't want any tragedy to prevent a single child from returning to classes next fall.

Kent Center Support

The increased number of scholarships made available at the Salem Academic Center of Kent State University is further evidence of community support.

Different organizations—labor councils, the PTA's, women's clubs and private citizens—have contributed financial support for the specific purpose of providing tuition scholarships to worthy students who apply. Seven freshmen were granted scholarships last year.

Meanwhile, plans are going forward for the opening of the Academic Center for its third year next fall in the high school building, although five summer courses are now being offered.

No Time Off

By Truman Twill

Somebody will have to sit down in a corner with me sometime and explain why only politicians have the option of looking for their next job on company time.

I have a lively interest in the subject because I am one of some 180 million stockholders in the United States and one of a smaller group in my state and my local community.

If I were a stockholder in a private enterprise whose top brass was looking for another job on company time, I'd squawk. Has anything happened to my right to squawk about public jobholders who leave their desks to go campaigning?

All that has happened to it, as far as I can see, is that nobody has been exercising it. The help has been getting away with murder because no one has cracked the whip.

SO WHAT should be done about this? It should be clearly understood that a man elected to serve a term in a public office should be on the job the equivalent of 8-5 in private employment.

He should be entitled to a reasonable vacation and compensatory time off if he had to work overtime in special situation.

Though there would be no objection if he stepped out occasionally for a quick coffee break, there would be strident objection if he stepped out weeks at a time for a political campaign.

When the time came for a jobholder to look for work of a nature better suited to his talents, he would be expected to do what his counterpart in private enterprise would be forced to do—resign.

If he got funny ideas about lifting himself with the voters' bootstraps, they would fire him—with no ifs, ands, or buts.

YET, BECAUSE nobody has been cracking the whip these characters get elected to one job, then start laying the groundwork for the next one.

If there is so little to do that they can be away from their desks indefinitely, the job must not be very important in the first place. Or if they have it so thoroughly in hand that the routine can be handled by flunkies, they should pro-rate the time they don't have to spend on it and hand back the money.

Prize example of the moment is New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, who has been away from his desk in Albany so long his wife almost had to call a cab to race the stork to the hospital.

But the practice goes all the way down the line and all the way up—politicos living off the public while striving to improve their earning power.

Either they should resign, or ask for a leave of absence, turning over the duties of their office to some kind of a trustee.

As I said at the beginning, somebody will have to sit down in a corner with me sometime and explain why it should be otherwise. And I don't think I could be convinced.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

News dispatches say that many European newspapers reacted with dismay over the victory of Sen. Goldwater in the California primary election. Why was there such a sharp reaction in Europe?

David Lawrence

The answer to the question may reveal some unpleasant truths about the world situation, particularly the rise of commercialism and the decline of idealism in Europe. Appeasers nowadays are in the ascendancy abroad.

Many Europeans are afraid that if Sen. Goldwater is elected president, he might have a courageous secretary of state like John Foster Dulles. Also, Europeans do not understand the deep-seated feeling of voters in many parts of America over the fact that a prospering Western Europe is paying so little of the bill to maintain peace in the world.

Most European newspapers have a way of accepting as gospel what the so-called "liberals" in America say on national and international affairs.

The impression abroad is that the United States will continue to bear by itself the brunt of every international problem and that the financial and commercial assistance now given by European countries to the Communist regimes is gradually but surely being adopted as American policy as well.

One of the British papers calls Sen. Goldwater an "eighteenth century individualist" and "a sort of Rip Van Winkle who has been sleeping since 1776."

THE TRUTH is that many Americans have not forgotten 1776 and the tyrannies imposed by the British autocracy, and they feel a deep sympathy for the oppressed peoples of Eastern Europe who today want to achieve their independence, too, but are getting little moral support from various spokesmen of the British press.

It's natural for the Moscow press to be dismayed over the Goldwater victory because the Soviets know that Sen. Goldwater is a realist who will, if elected president, deal with facts as they are and not attempt to gloss them over, and that he will pick a secretary of state of like mind.

The Arizona senator's strength is not merely the result of the support of the professional politicians but of "grassroots" sentiment as well. His total vote thus far in the primaries far that which John F. Kennedy had received in his pre-convention campaign of 1960, and this is due largely to the resentment prevalent in this country about the war in Southeast Asia. Americans are wondering why their sons must make the sacrifices in Viet Nam while the rest of the free world stands idly by.

THE EUROPEAN press might have studied carefully, too, why the foreign aid program has had such a hard time in Congress. It might have been noted that, ever since World War II ended, the United States has consistently furnished billions and billions of dollars for the rebuilding of Europe.

Now that prosperity has been achieved there, resentment is growing in America that the Europeans do not seem inclined to pay their share, either in money or in lives, to maintain peace in the world.

European statesmen would do well also to watch the campaign carefully, because, irrespective of whether Sen. Goldwater wins the nomination or the election, the reaction of the American people to foreign policy will have much to do with the result and its aftermath.

The American people are getting tired of carrying the burden alone in world affairs. Many citizens do not approve of the wheat deal, for instance, whereby the United States succumbed to European appeasement policies and authorized the sale of wheat to the Russians.

THERE IS TALK today also that the administration here is beginning to play footsie with some of the Communist-bloc Countries in Eastern Europe, and this, too, will become a campaign issue because many Americans do not believe this is a proper way to protect the United States against Communist encroachments.

It's absurd to suggest, as some European papers have done, that Sen. Goldwater or any other prominent American today favors a reversion to earlier American policies of "isolation." No prominent American today supports such a doctrine because it is recognized how interrelated world affairs have become. There is instead a distinct feeling in the United States that America is involuntarily being isolated by European policy-makers and that the new isolation results in this country carrying the load.

Views of Our Readers

Opposed To Zoning Change

As interested residential property owners in the area surrounding the 6-acre tract of ground in which the Salem Valve Co. is interested, we feel that, contrary to your editorial, we are being realistic in opposing the zoning change.

The voters of Perry Township approved the zoning law proposed by the Township Trustees, who spent considerable time, effort, and money to come up with a realistic plan. Reasons other than "favorite son" thinking should prevail before any change whatsoever should be made in the approved plan.

Everyone is familiar with the objections residential property owners have to industry moving into or expanding in their area. We feel that these considerations are perhaps only equal to arguments advanced for keeping industry in the Salem area. However, this proposed change in the zoning law is objectionable on its face and for other reasons.

If SAIDC and other people familiar with the needs of industrial development say that there is a need for more industrial area in the township we certainly believe them. We fail to understand why the addition of a 6-acre tract will solve the problem or even go very far toward the solution. A piece-meal extension of industrial area along Newgarden Road could not be construed by anyone as being proper. Township officials, along with people and groups such as SAIDC, should be looking for larger areas so that this industrial need and future industrial needs can be met. Spot zoning is only a temporary postponement of the inevitable need.

The fact that two industries exist at the present time in this area is not a sound reason for expansion of the area. These industries were there before zoning. There was not a large industrial area set off there because of existing residential properties and the residential potential of the area.

When Mr. Parker wished to expand his existing industrial needs in the area not one of us objected. We felt that since he had been there before the zoning and even before some of the now existing residences that we should cooperate. How realistic can we be?

We admit to a very personal interest in the immediate situation but feel that the interests of the township and the Salem area as a whole can best be served by denying this proposed zoning change and seeking another solution.

Johnson Replies To Barry

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, far in advance of the political conventions, this week in effect opened his presidential campaign with a speech on American might.

It served three different purposes: It was a warning to the Communist world, a reassurance to allies, and a reply to Sen. Barry Goldwater who has been consistently critical of American defenses.

Johnson opened up just one day after Goldwater's victory in the California primary pushed him far ahead of all other contenders for the Republican presidential nomination in July.

Johnson, whose own nomination by the Democrats in August is taken for granted never mentioned the Arizona. But his words were a clear reply to Goldwater. The speech took in more than Goldwater.

It was so detailed Johnson's talk can be considered a basic reply to any attacks the Republican party may try to make when the campaign gets going.

In talks, Goldwater has made since the start of 1964 and most recently in a booklet — "Sen. Goldwater Speaks Out on the Issues"—the senator has attacked this country's defense set-up in general and its missiles in particular.

The Johnson administration wasted no time going after Goldwater when he began his attack last January with the statement that U.S. intercontinental ballistic missiles were "undependable."

He got a fast answer from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, whom Johnson has blessed consistently. McNamara called Goldwater "politically irresponsible" and his statement "damaging to national security."

Goldwater has attacked him ever since. But on the same day Goldwater made his statement, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said he is confident the United States has "just as good missiles as there are in the world."

Following are some examples of what Goldwater has said since January and of what Johnson said this week.

Goldwater, acknowledging the importance of missiles, complained this country is getting rid of its manned bombers and by the 1970s will be relying on missiles alone.

He said: "We cannot put our sole reliance on missile systems as against a mixed force—missiles, manned aircraft, and naval vessels of all types."

Johnson said this country has more than 1,000 fully armed ICBM and Polaris missiles (fired from submarines) ready for retaliation and he added: "The Soviet Union has far fewer and none ready to be launched beneath the seas."

"We have more than 1,100 strategic bombers, many of which are equipped with air-to-surface and decoy missiles to help them reach almost any target. The Soviet Union, we estimate, could with difficulty send less than one-third of this number over targets in the United States."

And Johnson made his sweeping statement: "In every phase of national strength America today is stronger than it has ever been before. It is stronger than any adversary or combination of adversaries. It is stronger than the combined might of all the nations in the history of the world, and I confidently predict that strength will continue to grow more rapidly than the might of all others."

Goldwater said, "We are lagging behind in weapons technology and in the development of new systems."

Johnson said: "In the past several years we have begun many important new weapons systems." He listed some of them.

County's Covered Bridges Reminder of the Past

BRIDGE AT TEEGARDEN south of Salem is probably most familiar to people in this district. Mrs. Thomas Jager and Miss Dorothy Lucek admire the picturesque setting.

BRANCHES FROM STURDY TREES provide a frame for this view of another of Columbiana County's old covered bridges. This one is on Miller Rd. southeast of St. Jacob's Church in section 35 of Salem Township.

WAYNE TOWNSHIP'S covered span. This covered bridge is situated on Trinity Church Rd. west of Gavers in Wayne Township.

The rumblings of wagon wheels and the beat of horses' hoofs can almost be heard in nostalgic recollection while visiting the six covered bridges still existent in Columbiana County. All but one of the bridges still supports light vehicular traffic.

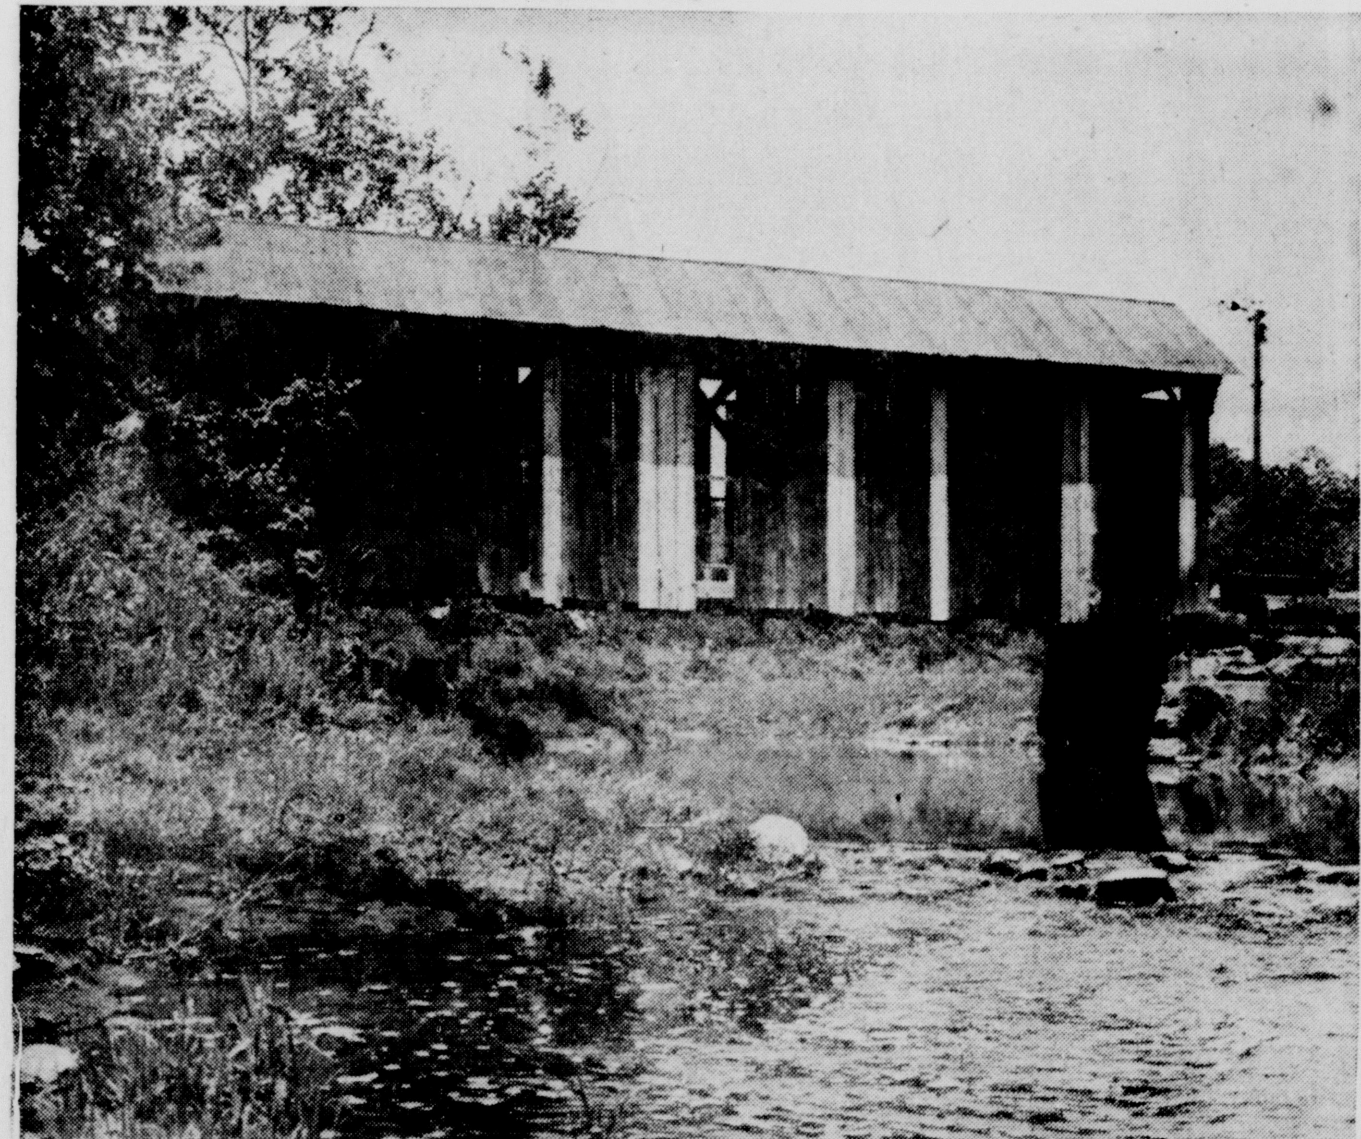

The bridges are made entirely of wood and often with use of pegs and dowells, instead of bolts and nails, the reason for this being the plentiful supply of wood and the scarcity of iron before the turn of the century. The bridges were covered to protect the timbers from weather and thus prolong the life of the bridge.

In their old age, they are picturesque reminders of the past.

For those who care to see these bridges, they are off the beaten track on well-maintained dirt roads. It is well worth a Sunday drive to see the bridges. They are concentrated in a relatively small area and all can be easily seen in four or five hours, including time out for a picnic lunch.

ONE OF TWO covered bridges in Center Township is this inviting arch along Little Beaver Creek north of Dungannon.

CENTER TOWNSHIP boasts of having two covered bridges on Little Beaver Creek. This one sits high above the water near Trinity Church Rd.

CHURCH HILL RD. BRIDGE stands on a dedicated former road strip in Elkrun Township northeast of Lisbon where the main highway now goes around the shortest of all the county's historic covered bridges.

Regional hairdos keyed to a siren theme by a New York hairstylist, Mr. Etan, are not what they seem to be. Siren of the Hudson (East Coast), left, has basic short haircut. But, the cheek-dipping wave is a hairpiece and so are her wisp-like bangs. Southern charmer (right) is called Siren of the Mississippi. Her haircut also is the new short style. The waterfall of curls (false) tumble from a smooth crown, slightly raised. Here each curl is an individual hairpiece but a single piece also can be set for such curls.

By ALICIA HART
Beauty Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The woman who turns to the basic and unspoiled hairdo for spring and summer has the potential of becoming a siren for special occasions.

Young hair stylist Mr. Etan of New York recently took one model, gave her the new blunt cut that falls just below the earlobe and parts to one side with a slight wave. Using this as a base he added pin-on hair pieces ranging from soft, false bangs to a cascade of curls.

Make-up co-ordinated to the hairdos led to such intriguing looks of what he called the siren of the Seine (Paris), siren of the Tiber (Italian) and siren of the Ganges (Indian).

Mr. Etan also created an over-all look for regional parts of the United States for the Lily Dache salon. Here are a few:

FOR THE SIREN of the Hudson (Eastern U.S.) the hair is shaped so that the head appears small and the hairdo composed. Usually worn with bangs. Hats to wear with this are neat with turned-up brims or a puffed-downward brim with high crowns in polished, colored straw with a band. Lipstick is keyed to the clothing color but is light and fresh.

MOVING WESTWARD there is the siren of the Missouri (Midwest) with her hair drawn low at the sides. Often it is swept toward the front.

This is a young, almost nonchalant look and the hats are high, often tailored but may lean toward the flowery, such as a draped flowered chiffon. Natural make-up is achieved with a hint of rouge on the forehead, cheeks and nose blended into a pale foundation. Eyes are emphasized with tiny upward strokes of a liner at the inner corner.

THE SIREN OF the Mississippi (Southern) has a soft, peach-colored make-up with no strong rouge accents. Her hair also follows the new softened line—smooth, brushed back from the face but with curls at the back. Hats are off the face and softly colored but not fussy.

AND, SHOWING her own sophistication is the siren of Sacramento (West Coast). She wears her hair longer, looser and never hidden under the hat she may wear. Hers are wide-brimmed, deep-crowned hats. Again her make-up is careful but she differs from her regional cousins by accenting one feature, such as her eyes.

All this may sound like a New York City salon dream but Mr. Etan drew his forecast from the climatic needs and living habits of women in the areas mentioned. He tied these into current coiffure and cosmetic trends.

Elizabeth Stacey Has Held City Job 20 Years

By CAROL CROFT

"The biggest problem of the public health nurse today is getting patients rehabilitated and re-employed after a long illness," asserts Mrs. Elizabeth Stacey, R.N.

And who should know better than she? Mrs. Stacey has been working with the Salem Department of Health since June, 1929, with the exception of a period from 1937 to 1953. She maintains that if a patient can't get employment, the whole family is seriously affected.

A native of Damascus, where she still resides, Mrs. Stacey has many memories of events occurring through the years and notes the striking contrast between public health work then and now.

SHE RECALLS THAT, during the depression era, there was just one nurse in the health department and she had to double as the only school nurse in the community. Many times, she waited three or four months for her pay because of the city's finances.

A vivid memory of those hard times which comes to her is the time she had to teach one family how to cook rolled oats and make vegetable soup because they didn't know how. She remembers the tonsil clinics conducted during the depression on the top floor of the Memorial Building. Children were brought in the morning and left for home by 1 or 2 in the afternoon. Usually eight to 10 youngsters received the operation daily.

A MARKED DIFFERENCE between public health nursing in "the old days" and today is the way in which communicable diseases are handled. Homes used to be quarantined for scarlet fever, measles, diphtheria, whooping cough and smallpox, a practice which is not followed regularly today.

One man was fined $10 for violating the law of quarantine. Another home, she recalls, had a scarlet fever sign almost one entire summer as each member of the family would pass it on to another.

Underprivileged children were sent to a fresh air camp west of Lisbon during that time. The nurse would also buy food for quarantined families if the wage earner were unable to work.

New serums for immunization against communicable diseases were the factors in changing the pattern from quarantine to the system now observed in society regarding the diseases. Cases now are not so severe and, in many instances, the disease is not discovered until the period during which it is communicable has passed, making quarantine of little or no value.

Medical science has done much to develop cures in the past 10 years. Statistics show that there were 16 cases of polio in Salem in 1954 and only two in 1959. Today, it is rare to find one case.

Tuberculosis is also occurring less and less, although it is still far from extinct. One of the public health nurse's largest duties, time-wise, is administering anti-TB drugs.

ANOTHER OF Mrs. Stacey's duties is teaching parenthood classes two or three times per year. Nursing homes are now under the jurisdiction of the board of health so other responsibilities have been added to her schedule in connection with the nursing homes.

She notes that one problem cropping up at present is the lack of booster shots being given to children in school. Although all children entering school must be immunized thoroughly, many parents seem to feel that it ends there and that further protection is not necessary. Mrs. Stacey stresses the importance of the booster shot.

Regular visits to TB patient are made monthly. When a new case is discovered, she must also orient the patient and the family - the patient for his stay in the hospital and the family for his further recuperation. Peace of mind is of utmost importance in such cases, according to Mrs. Stacey.

Sandwiched into her busy schedule are tuberculin testing in schools, working many times with city relief cases and county welfare patients and, in general, trying to educate the public to do something about prevention of disease before a cure becomes necessary.

ACCORDING TO Mrs. Stacey, there are four duties of everyone in public work. They are observing, listening, asking questions and teaching.

She defines public health as the state of complete physical, mental and social well-being of the community, not merely the absence of disease and infirmity.

She adds that the responsibility of the health department is to determine the mental and physical needs of the community to see if the needs are being met and, if they aren't, to determine what steps should be taken.

This friendly but modest individual claims that her greatest reward from her work is helping people. She likes to see new mothers turn out to be good mothers. She has also enjoyed seeing the children that she nursed in the '30s grow up and begin rearing families of their own.

Dear Ann Landers: I work in an office where at least once a week someone approaches me about joining an office pool. If it isn't the Rose Bowl, a professional football game or the Kentucky Derby, it's the All-Star game or the World Series.

Gambling is against my principles but I never have criticized those who do it. I just say "No" and let it go.

Something new has come up, however, and I wonder if I should say something.

Five of my co-workers have formed a pool in which each of them has listed the names of 100 famous people who may die during 1964. When one of these people dies, the ones who had his name add points to their scores by deducting the age of the deceased from 100.

Recently a well known American died. Mr. X came bounding into the office all smiles and announced triumphantly, "He was on my list."

Under the rules it says, "If the player himself dies, 10 points should be added to his score. If at the end of the year he is the winner, the proceeds of the pool should be spent for flowers for his grave, unless the surviving players should vote to have a party."

What do you think of this? — D. F.

Dear D. F.: What you describe is a reheated version of the old ghoul pool. Anyone who would make a game out of death is a tasteless clod.

Reception Guests

Dear Ann: My sisters and I plan to give a party in honor of our parents' 35th wedding anniversary. Since my home is the largest, I have offered to have the party here.

The trouble is my folks know everybody in town and the guest list will run to about 300 people. My home can't accommodate that crowd but I don't see how we can trim the list.

My husband suggested we remove all the chairs from the house to discourage people from sitting down. We plan to have sandwiches and a sweet table but folks like to sit when they are having a snack — especially the men — so I vetoed the no-chairs idea.

I know you are not running a social column, but this comes under the heading of a problem. Please suggest something — something. — HATTIE.

Dear Hattie: Stagger the guests. Invite 50 for 3 p.m., another 50 for 4 p.m. and so on.

Of course, some people can be depended on to arrive with the first wave and to hang around till the last drop is poured but nobody ever has figured out what to do about THEM, so don't try.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Salem News, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

When's a Slip Not a Slip?

AP Newsfeatures

A slip need no longer be a social error. The lingerie designers have considered just about every aspect of the undercover story and have come up with most of the answers.

Among the half slips that give a little is a side-wrapped version, like the side wrapped skirt — wonderful for the miss with a thick hip or thigh problem. It is also ideally worn under pleated, or deeply-gored skirts. After all, why wear a skirt with plenty of action room if the underskirt restricts movement?

A frustrating problem to the devotee of the dinner gown is the long skirt slip that limits movement to mincing strides, spoiling all the fun when the lively dance music strikes up.

Very often formal wear designers stitched in their own slips. But these sometimes presented problems, especially when the underslip does not hold up as well as the dress itself in drycleaning.

Now the lingerie makers are inundating the market with knee-high slits up the back of the skirt or with deep pleats in the sides.

Easy to Clean

The new paste patent handbags and shoes make it possible for every woman to match her lightest ensembles and accessories without a worry about their soiling. They wipe clean with the flick of a damp cloth.

A Collar For Your Costume

The "white collar girl" became famous when girls began to go into business as stenographers, clerks, etc. Previously the only occupations for women were teaching, nursing or housework.

The "Gibson Girl" made shirtwaists famous. The wide shoulders of the Gibson Girl shirtwaist, the prim collars and cuffs definitely marked the turn of the century and liberation for women, as more and more women "went to business."

The shirt-waist of dark fabric, to match the skirt, with white collar and cuffs, became almost a uniform. Then the cardigan worn over the shirtwaist became popular.

Then, the sweater with its own white collar, which many a movie star wore to advantage.

WE HAVE HAD a long period of pearls, costume jewelry, and scarves for the neckline. Now at last facings of contrasting fabric, wide bias folds that stand up, also those that fold over double, are having their day.

There are many oval or rounded, also bateau necklines that are finished with narrow gathered embroidery or lace. Some necklines are finished with a 4-inch bias fold of pique. All come under collar classification since they make a contrasting finish for the neckline.

Many low shirtwaist-type collars have a bow of fabric to finish where front ends of collar meet.

Others have circular cut frills that are cut on a bias and cut to fit the neckline, but ripple on the outside edges. Many of these are made of the fabric of the dress, and very pretty they are.

The low bateau neckline with a 5-inch bias fold collar standing 2 3/4 inches high when attached to the dress, ends overlapping at the left side—one end held to place with a "larger-the-better" pin—is seen on many well-dressed women.

THE DOUBLE COLLAR of self-fabric, shaped much like a Peter Pan only less wide and on a lower neckline, is one decidedly favored by designers both for ready-to-wear and patterns. These also are made of linen, linenlike silks, and synthetics.

Beautiful silk prints made in a 16-inch-wide bias scarf 1 3/4 to 1 1/2 yards long, this folded double and tied softly on the left shoulder, is flattering and eye-catching especially when worn with a dress in plain color. A soft chiffon scarf in a skin flattering color is always lovely and, for many, essential.

Points to remember in making a collar or scarf or facing are to choose a color and texture just right for you, seek flattery when possible. We each have a native color, right for us, find what is really truly becoming to you, and use it next to your face whenever possible.

If you see a pattern with a good neckline finish, buy the pattern and cut your collar from this. Sometimes it is worth-while to buy a ready-made collar and use it as a pattern for other collars.

WHEN MAKING COLLARS—cut carefully so grain in the fabric is right for the shape of the collar. Stretch bias edges slightly as you stitch them so they cannot tighten. Trim seams so they are even. Clip seam corners so there will be no excess bulk. Press any stretch out when you press the seam edges.

Lingerie neck finishes should be removable so that they can be kept immaculate. Never hope that you can "get by" with a collar worn too many times before. Freshness is completely essential to a crisp smart look.

When laundering lingerie collars, wash by hand. If there is soil at the neckline, put detergent over the soil and let stand a little while before washing so any streaks are removed.

Lay the collar out on the ironing board, shaping it as it will come on the dress neckline. Press, do not iron, so correct shape will be retained.

'Husband Talk'

By RUTH MILLETT

Try to Translate Those Solicitudes

By RUTH MILLETT

Husbands, as most wives know, speak a language all their own. However, for any wife who isn't sure just what her husband means by what he says, here are some helpful hints.

"Does it have to be done NOW?" isn't a question. It means a man is in no mood to do the little chore you want him to do, and if you keep on bringing up the subject he will shortly accuse you of nagging.

"Is that what you're going to wear?" isn't a question either. It's a man's polite way of saying, "I never liked that dress on you and I wish you wouldn't wear it."

"Don't go to a lot of trouble" means your husband expects you to have the house spotless, a perfect company meal prepared, every detail worked out — and make no commotion about it, so he can assume that you entertain as easily as other women pretend they do.

"WHAT HAVE YOU BEEN doing all day?" isn't a question even the most devoted husband wants answered in detail. It's sort of a formality that husbands think sounds handsomely. "What are you going to do all evening?" asked solicitously when leaving for a meeting or his weekly poker game isn't really an honest question. That is, the husband doesn't want an honest answer such as, straighten up the house, get the children bathed and to bed, write some letters—and so on."

HE WANTS TO HEAR that you've got a new book you're dying to read, or anything else that will make him feel he won't be missed.

He wants to feel you are really looking forward to a free evening, instead of just sitting around feeling neglected while he is out enjoying himself.

"Where did you put such-and-such?" simply means he has misplaced something and wants you to get busy and find it for him.

Meanwhile, Mothers Keep Talking

"Would you please, please write a column," asks a woman reader, "about the mothers who have but one topic of conversation—a teen-age daughter?"

"Wherever you speak to one of these doting mothers, you have to listen while she goes on and on about her daughter. And when two of the same sort are in a group, heaven help the others. No one else gets a chance to get a word in edgewise. Do these mothers really suppose that everyone is as interested in their teen-agers' doings as they are?"

A MOTHER WHO TALKS constantly about a teen-age daughter has probably never bothered to ask herself if anyone else is interested.

She talks about her daughter at every opportunity for one of two reasons.

She is so busy reliving her own girlhood through her daughter that she hasn't any real and absorbing interests of her own.

OR—SHE THINKS her daughter is to get her launched, and needs a full-time press agent figures that mother is just the person for the job. So she tackles it with dedication, and doesn't let up until her daughter is safely married.

If these doting mothers bore you too much with their endless chatter about their darling daughters, there's just one solution. Avoid them for a few years.

Once they marry off their daughters, they'll quit talking about them. As soon as the girls are out of dating competition, the mothers will relax and go back to leading their own lives. They'll then have some more generally interesting topics of conversation.

It's amazing how much a daughter's marriage can do for the woman who has been thinking of nothing else since her daughter's first date in junior high.

FANTASTIC RUN
NEW YORK (AP) — "The Fantasticks" continues to roll up achievement milestones off Broadway.

The little musical — it has a cast of just five — clicked off its 1,671st performance on May 3, fifth anniversary of its premiere. It is the fifth longest-running musical in stage history, on Broadway or off.

Homemaker's Credo

By RUTH MILLETT

For the woman with children who has a husband willing and able to earn a living for his family there is nothing more important than—

CREATING the kind of home that is a haven for every member of the family, and where each one's friends are welcome.

BEING AT HOME, herself when the children return from school.

BY EXAMPLE and discipline—not by preaching—to teach her children to become trustworthy, dependable, responsible human beings.

ALWAYS having time to listen to any member of the family who wants to confide in her.

CONSERVING her time and energy for the really important things she owes her family, instead of frittering both away on outside "busy work."

IN TRYING TO be a good mother, never let up in her desire to be a real companion to her husband.

FINDING TIME each week for doing some of the things she really wants to do so that she never feels like an unappreciated martyr.

INSISTING THAT the children do their share of the household chores so that she doesn't become a resentful drudge.

DEVELOPING HOBBIES, skills or intellectual interests that will keep her from feeling lost when her children are finally grown and gone from home.

FINDING TIME to make and enjoy friendships, and for being a good neighbor.

Blend Rugs, Wall Decor

With the current emphasis on vivid colors and dramatic patterns in rugs, a new trend in wall decor is developing.

"The painting that was so perfect with plain carpeting can turn into an eyesore when you add a 'conversation piece' area rug," reports Mary Ann Willis, decorating consultant to the makers of Arabesque wall accessories.

"Rely instead on texture and interesting form in your wall decor to create a restful effect," she advises.

Massive clocks, deep-dimensional plaques, and even decorative mirrors with matching candle sconces are especially compatible with patterned floor coverings. You'll find them in a variety of period styles in furniture, department, and gift stores.

If your rug is a Moroccan import, for example, you might consider using a group of primitive Mediterranean figures on the wall above your sofa.

A trio of tall chess figures in would look stunning with a contemporary area rug.

White Is Right For Evening

For summer evening formals, white most effectively sets off a golden sultan. Long gown of birdseye pique (left) has Venetian lace top over flesh-colored sheer and low V-decolletage in back. Long white tree-bark crepe dinner gown (right) has lattice detail of self material just above the bustline and across the entire top. 144th Scholarship To Be Granted

Salem Alumni Assn. Pioneered In Aid To Worthy Seniors

By GLENN SCHOTTEN
When Judge Joel H. Sharp sharply raps the bench with his gavel in Common Pleas Court he wields justice.

When the same man, gavel-less but still with authority, presides at sessions of a beneficent Salem group he deals out cash aid to promising young persons. Not alone, but with members of the Scholarship Committee of the Salem High School Alumni Association, which he directs as chairman.

TONIGHT SIX SALEM graduating seniors will be present to receive scholarships in varying amounts for excellence in scholastic work. When the sixth student is handed his scholarship by Judge Sharp it will mark the 144th such award of its kind in the alumni association's long history.

The $3,300 to be given out in scholarships tonight brings the total amount distributed to $50,060, all of it money given by persons or organizations interested in seeing bright, youngsters get ahead.

Few people outside those closest to the organization realize that Salem was the first Ohio high school to offer a scholarship award.

WALTER FRENCH was the first winner back in 1908 when he was presented a grant of $60 to further his education.

Four years later, one of Salem High's most illustrious products was honored with a $120 scholarship. In that year, 1911, the organization for the first time gave the award to the first honor graduate of the class. The recipient: Charles Burchfield, who has won acclaim for his talent as an artist.

Some other outstanding winners have been Ella Thea Smith Cox, teacher and author of the text, "Exploring Biology"; Drs. Karl Ulicny, Harold Hoprich, William Rogers, Joseph Kelley and Leo Kline Jr.; organist and opera singer, Joseph Marsilia.

Although the alumni association was organized in June, 1882, at a convention of 33 graduates, the scholarship idea evolved slowly. After meeting for 21 years, the group decided that the association needed more of a "raison d'être", a reason for existence, beyond mere fellowship and sociability.

IN 1903, president George Adams, '87, appointed a committee to organize a scholarship fund for the benefit of Salem grads. The group decided to raise funds by soliciting former graduates.

A sum of $395 was accumulated with $250 more promised. Judge Sharp's father, H. H. Sharp, was named the first chairman of the scholarship committee. The father-son team has been at the helm ever since its birth.

On the original committee were W. B. Carey, treasurer, and Lucy Hampson, secretary, with Mrs. L. L. Gilbert, W. W. Hole and William H. Lambert rounding out the group.

The committee was given the power to invest the funds and devise a set of rules for awarding the scholarships.

At the 1907 meeting Mr. Sharp reported that all but $122 of the first $1,000 bond had been raised and that, in all probability, the first award would be made to next year's class. So in 1908 the interest from the bond — $60 — was granted to French.

AS THE HOLDINGS GREW and interest payments increased, the size of the awards grew until it reached this year's $3,300 peak.

When the scholarship idea first took root, classes were contacted and their donations were credited to them as classes rather than as individuals.

Later it became the custom for the departing Senior Class to give a large chunk of their treasury to "beef up" the scholarship fund. This has been a source of constant replenishment with the record gift presented by the Class of 1930. That group contributed $1,125, ahead of the second-place class of 1956, which donated $905. The Class of 1954 donated $900 and 1955, $901.

Though these gifts make up the main source of income, other monies are added by previous award winners who, out of appreciation, decide to pay back all or part of the amount they received.

SEVERAL FORMER teachers have made substantial contributions and many alumni and friends of Salem High have left bequests to the fund. Some donations have been given as memorials to friends who were former students. The latest such gift in memoriam was received this year from John S. Hanna, '60, in honor of his classmate, Vincent Taus, killed in a car crash in Connecticut.

The solid core of service-minded alumni which has steered the scholarship group has lent stability and continuity to the fund. The long tenure of the Sharps as chairmen reduced the dangers inherent with quick turnover of leadership.

The office of secretary-treasurer has also been filled by only three persons. Harry Young, '93, succeeded W. B. Carey, '79, at an early date, and Harrys son, W. Eugene Young, '27, stepped in as secretary-treasurer in 1947, serving ever since.

MRS. GLENN WHINNERY, the high school's unofficial historian and herself a long-time member of the scholarship committee, says, "When you scan the long list of professional people who have benefitted from the alumni awards, you must inevitably feel a thrill of pride to know that you have had a part in building this fine 'Quaker' institution. A lot of Salem alumni feel the same way."

the middle of the road while the driver attempted to restart the vehicle caused a minor accident on U.S. 62, one half mile north of Salem, at 1:10 a.m. this morning.

Vennie Joan Martin, 17, of 166 S. Howard Ave. told the Highway Patrol that the car spun around on the highway and stopped in the middle of the road. She said she turned off the lights in an effort to restart the vehicle when an approaching vehicle driven by Linda Lee Seever, 18, of RD 3, Canfield, struck the rear of the Martin auto. Moderate damage to both vehicles was reported by the patrol. Both Miss Seever and Miss Martin were cited into juvenile court.

Multiple abrasions of the face and arm and contusions of the wrist were received by Russell Welling, 26, of RD 4, Guilford Lake, when he drove off left side of the road and struck a telephone pole following an attempt to pass another vehicle at 5:45 this morning on Depot Road, one quarter mile south of Salem.

Welling was taken to the Salem Clinic hospital and was charged with speed excessive for road conditions.

Failure to observe a vehicle passing on his left caused moderate damages to a sedan driven by Leslie Donald Baker, 45, of RD 5, Lisbon, Friday at 4:55 p.m., the Patrol reported Fred W. Kawajski, 52, of Smithfield, Pa., was passing the Baker vehicle on State Route 45, two miles north of Lisbon, when Baker tried to turn left.

With Patients

Mrs. Sarah Loudon, 89, of RD 1, Glasgow Rd., Salineville, is in "fair" condition at Salem City Hospital with a possible fracture of the left hip and wrist which she suffered in a fall Friday at the home of her daughter, where she lives. She was admitted at 4:40 p.m. Friday.

Kimberly Underwood, one-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Underwood of RD 1, Kensington, was treated for contusions of the nose at 6 p.m. Friday at Alliance City Hospital after she fell at home.

Only 50 Sign Up As Blood Donors

Blood donors are urgently needed for Tuesday's Red Cross Bloodmobile visit to Salem, Louis J. Raymond, chairman said. He termed the registration of only 50 district blood donors "alarmingly low."

The bloodmobile will be at the Methodist Church from 12 noon Tuesday to 6 p.m. The visit is being sponsored by the Eagles Lodge, with Mrs. A. R. Stark as chairman. Appointments can be made by contacting the Red Cross office.

Armed Robbery Trial To Start Monday

LISBON — The armed robbery trial of Sam Miner, 32, of Youngstown, indicted by the April grand jury, will begin Monday morning before Common Pleas Court Judge Joel H. Sharp.

Miner allegedly robbed Lippitt's Linoleum Store, west of Salem last Feb. 27, in which $90 was taken.

Miner, along with John Pounds, 33, Alliance, who was found guilty two weeks ago by a Petit Jury, is waiting a hearing on an appeal for a new trial.

Both Miner and Pounds were shot in the head by Alliance police before they were captured in a stolen truck allegedly used in the armed robbery, shortly after the holidays.

Montgomery has criticized Eisenhower's wartime role in his 1963 memoirs and in a subsequent television interview. Eisenhower never replied publicly, although he was known to have resented the remarks.

The two men dined with other British wartime commanders in apparent joviality in London later.

Lord Tedder, who was deputy supreme commander under Eisenhower and now is marshal of the Royal Air Force, appeared earlier on the same BBC broadcast Friday night and complained that the program inclined to give a predominantly British version of the invasion. After hearing Montgomery's remarks at his home later, Tedder said:

"This outburst is a pitiful example of a man's second childhood."

into the case April 29, four days after the druggist was fatally shot at his store at 1205 W. State St. However, the chief said, investigators could establish no link at that time between the suspect and the crime.

The suspect's name continued to crop up as the probe continued. Police first questioned him Thursday. After being held in jail that night, he was released and placed under surveillance.

Ten hours after releasing him, police — with evidence uncovered during the all-night session — again picked up the six-foot, 170-pound suspect and returned him to jail, reports indicated.

Chief Cowen said today there is a possibility that an additional arrest might be made in the case. He did not elaborate.

Investigators, who sought a motive for the brutal killing said they are inclined to think that robbery, previously discounted, may have been the motive.

Chief Cowen, touching on the motive angle without further revealing details, said it suddenly seemed to be a wanton killing, with the murderer pumping three slugs into the back of the 47-year-old Nagy, who was alone in his store and apparently eating a piece of toast, his back toward his assailant.

The suspect apparently knew Nagy, but Chief Cowen said it must have been only on a casual basis, resulting from the man's trips to the pharmacy as a customer.

Robbery previously had been discounted as a motive because apparently no money was taken, nor was the pharmacy supply of narcotics disturbed.

Records at police headquarters indicate that the man being held never has been convicted on any serious crime. He once served 10 days in jail for malicious destruction of property and was arrested six times since 1960 for traffic violations.

Chief Cowen, Sgt. Joseph Short and other members of the department have worked many double shifts since the crime following up all the leads supplied by Alliance residents.

The chief said: "A major crime seldom is solved by police work alone, without information supplied by citizens. We appreciate the great help we have received in this case."

The chief also commended Police Chief Paul Gednetz and Patrolman David Abney of Sebring and Smith Township Police Chief Herbert Bollia.

About 10 per cent of the earth's present and area (or 5.8 million square miles) is covered with glacier ice, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Three Convicted Of Contributing

LISBON — Three men, two from East Liverpool and one from Wellsville, were sentenced and fined Friday afternoon by Judge Louis Tobin for contributing to the delinquency of six minor East Liverpool girls, ages 13-15, by serving beer to them at a private home.

Willard Payne, 22, apt. 2, Thompson Place, East Liverpool and Willie Bowser, 20, Wells Hollow Rd., Wellsville, were each sentenced to three months in the County jail and fined $100. Judge Tobin suspended the jail sentence on good behavior, but placed each on two years probation.

Alvin Pugh, 23, of 700 Dadmus St., East Liverpool, was fined $50 for violating his probation which he received Dec. 19, 1963, in that he was ordered not to associate with juveniles under 18 years of age.

All the girls were placed on 5 p.m. curfew and were ordered not to have any dates until they reached the age of 16. Court officials said that beer was purchased and consumed by some of the girls at the Pugh home. All were cited by juvenile probation officer James Miller.

failure and withdrawal of forces, Eisenhower wrote:

"My decision to attack at this time and place was based upon the best information available. The troops, the air and the Navy did all that bravery and devotion to duty could do. If any blame or fault attaches to the attempt, it is mine alone."

Eisenhower recalled the note during a taped television interview shown on the Columbia Broadcasting System network Friday night.

He said he would have assumed all blame, "because if it did fail, you know this, I was going into oblivion anyway, so I might as well take full responsibility."

Blumenson writes that a number of things could have defeated the invasion:

Bad weather at the start could have continued and complicated the amphibious landing of the 150,000 troops the first 24 hours and upset airborne operations further. If that had happened, the "cross-channel attack would have foundered."

The Germans' 15th Army, strongest in Western Europe, was deployed for anti-invasion — but at the wrong place, thanks to a deceptive plan of the Allies.

"Had the Germans moved the 15th Army to Normandy instead of keeping it in the Pas-de-Calais (to the north and at the narrowest part of the English Channel) for an invasion that never came, they might well have won the battle of D-Day," Blumenson writes.

Adolf Hitler had conflicting advice from two top commanders. Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt, commander in Western Europe, said a strong force should be kept in reserve, to be moved to whatever point the Allied landing appeared.

But Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, army group commander in the invasion area, wanted the reserve force immediately behind the beaches because he feared a central reserve force would be unable to move to a menaced point due to Allied air power.

Hitler hadn't decided which plan to accept when the landing started.

La La La La La
"I'd love to get an acting job on TV," said Yvonne Constant, a huggable little blonde with an accent that sends your body temperature up to 110 degrees Fahrenheit. "A dramatic part—

Alan Gill

she la la la la?

"You do not see me home," said Mlle. Constant, "on a rainy day or in the morning."
On "The Tonight Show," which she has visited 15 times now, Yvonne Constant is nothing if she is not la la la la la, as she tells Johnny Carson about her latest trip home to Paris, where her mother and sister live, or about the French temperament.

"IN A WAY," she said over lunch last week, "I am more French here than I am there. It used to be in Paris that I was always dieting and knew nothing about wine, or cawed. Here, I discovered it and cook with it all the time. There, what is the Eiffel Tower? Nothing, just a tower. Here, what is the Eiffel Tower? Something so grand, so French.

"My mother tells me I have become American. Last year on vacation, I had a bag over my shoulder and she said, 'Ho! See! You're not French any more!' Once a French movie star returned to Paris from Hollywood and told the press she was sorry but she had forgotten her French and oh, how they panned her.

"The French are not friendly, exactly. They don't keep smiling when they don't feel like smiling, and it's 'Bonjour, madame, bonjour, monsieur,' for a long time, while the American is saying, 'Hi ya, Johnny.' Here in department stores, people call you darling, sweetheart. In France, these are for love, though show business people say it to each other, too. Here, people say things they don't mean. Why? They say, 'Why don't you call me up tomorrow?' And when you do, they say, 'Who? What?'

"I TOOK A SUBWAY to the Fair the other day and all the men were sitting down. A beeg fat lady and I stood all the way. In France, the men would be terribly embarrassed not to get up." But to which lady would a Frenchman offer his seat—that was the problem. And Mlle. Constant answered it well: "To the fat lady, of course. Then the Frenchman could be with the young lady who is not fat."

American entertainers, said she, are a fine lot, as indeed they are. "Stars in France are more difficult with people. They are awful snobs and you cannot talk to them. And a starlet 18 years old? She is the worst, with her bikini, her stupid poses and her stupid face. Paris is full of snobs. St. Tropez? You can't go near the place."

JOHNNY CARSON, according to Yvonne Constant — "he is a ver', ver' nice man. For two days before I am to be on his show, I think of nothing. If we plan to talk of anything, it never happens. Things don't go that way.

"For the first three shows, nobody recognized me. Then, suddenly, on a street in Cleveland or Philadelphia, 'Hel - lo, Yvonne Hello.' I sing 'Tire L'Aiguille' and a nice woman stops me and asks me about the song. I sing 'La La La' and go and sit on a beach in Connecticut to read a book and ten people stop to talk about the show.

"Even on the subway on the way to the Fair, a woman on her way out told me she'd seen me in 'Tonight.' Not a man. A woman."

Gaston's Mill Is Being Restored

Work Begun On Old Landmark; Funds Needed

By R. MAX GARD

One of Ohio's famous landmarks is Gaston's Mill in the southwest corner of Middleton Township, Columbiana County, the object of a current fund drive to keep it intact.

Much has been written in syndicated columns and historical books about the old mill which, like Jayne Mansfield, also claims fame as a calendar feature.

The building was erected in 1837, during a great money panic, when workers were glad to exchange their skilled efforts for food, and cold cash was almost non-existent along Little Beaver Creek. The excavation of the Sandy and Beaver Canal had begun a few years earlier, but this project, along with practically all other public works, had been temporarily discontinued. Stonemasons, carpenters and contractors were idled by the shutdowns in work, and this was the ideal time to build a fine grist mill for the lowest price. And so, Philander Gaston's mill was built. It was busy for many years.

WITH THE INEVITABLE change in the source of power from water, to steam, to gasoline, and to electricity, the mill was well-maintained physically, despite its obsolescence. There came a day, when only Gaston's and the old Law Feed Mill in Lisbon, were the two remaining old mills on Little Beaver Creek.

In the late 1940s, the State of Ohio purchased Gaston's mill and adjacent property to be used as the headquarters for Little Beaver Creek State Forest Park. At that time, the building was sound in every respect and the machinery for running it was still mostly intact. A fire in Lisbon levelled the Old Laws mill, and Gaston's became the sole surviving 'Mill of the Pioneers' on Little Beaver Creek.

There followed a lackadaisical period, when the old mill was left to become the victim of the elements. The roof began to leak and the timbers began to sag. The late J. T. Darling, former publisher of Farm and Dairy, campaigned for the salvation of the old mill, but his pleas fell on disinterested ears.

THEN IN THE SPRING OF 1961, the Columbiana County Parks and Forests Council was organized, and one of its prime projects was the restoration of Gaston's Mill. A committee was named by President Donald Elliott, to look into the feasibility of saving this landmark for posterity. The State had abandoned all hope for saving it, and was preparing to tear it down.

The committee decided that it could and should be saved. The State accepted a contract for the restoration of the old mill, with the Forests and Parks Council supervising the job, and the Columbiana County Historical Association sponsoring the project.

WITH VOLUNTARY HELP and donations of money and material, the mill was restored from a near state of collapse to a sound structure, and with all

Lema Fires 135 For 2-Stroke Thunderbird Lead

2 Veterans Tie For 2nd

Palmer Among 6 Deadlocked At 139

By JIM BECKER Associated Press Sports Writer RYE, N.Y. (AP)—"I am 30," said Champagne Tony Lema, "going on 40, from standing over those pressure puts."

Lema fixed it so he wouldn't age over a putt on the 18th green Friday. He chipped the ball into the hole from off the edge for an eagle three.

That gave Lema a birdie-eagle finish in the second round of the $100,000 Thunderbird Golf Tournament, a 67 and a 36-hole total of 135, two strokes in front.

Champagne Tony overhauled Ken Venturi and Mike Souchak more than three hours after the had posted halfway totals of 137 and were in the clubhouse telling all about it.

Souchak had 68 Friday and Venturi a 70 as the field toyed with the short, 6,573-yard Westchester Country Club course. Par is listed at 72, but par shooters were lucky to get a starting time for today's third round.

The field was trimmed to the low 96 players, and it took 149 to get in.

Six players were tied at 138, including Paul Harney who was beaten by Arnold Palmer for the $20,000 top prize last year in a playoff.

Palmer, despite some of the worst iron shots I've ever hit in my life," scratched out a 71, and was among seven players tied at 139.

Included in that group were U.S. Open champion Julius Boros, who said he is getting sharper every day with the Open coming up in two weeks, and first-round leader Jerry Magee.

Boros had 67, while Magee skidded to a 73, largely on a three-over par seven on the 11th hole. That was a disaster from tee to green.

Jack Nicklaus, also tuning up for the Open championship, had a 69 for a 142 total, but he still wasn't satisfied with his game.

Lema galloped into the lead with a 32 on the back nine. He finished 34-3-3.

Narvaez Wins Again, Runs Streak To 14

NEW YORK (AP) — Frankie Narvaez' winning streak has increased to 14 but even the New Yorker's most ardent rooter has to admit he's a long way from being ready to take on lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz.

Narvaez, the seventh-ranking lightweight contender was lucky to gain a majority decision over bouncy Johnny Bizarro, a pesky type of fighter from Erie, Pa., at Madison Square Garden Friday night. They're virtually set for a return bout at the Garden July 17 or 24.

"I should have thrown more uppercuts," wailed Johnny after losing by a shade in his Garden and television debut as a main event.

If he had thrown as many earlier in the fight as he did in the last two rounds, he would have romped off with a decision over the 2-1 favorite.

Bizarro, the No. 2 contender in the 130-pound junior-lightweight division, elected to fight at long range and he had the squat little Puerto Rican batter chasing him for most of the 10 rounds.

Referee Petey Della, by 5-3-2 and judge Leo Birnbaum, by 5-4-1, voted for Narvaez. Judge Johnny Dran had it a draw, giving each five rounds and five points. The AP card had it even, 5-5.

Narvaez' record now is 20-1-1. Bizarro's is 46-8-2. Narvaez outweighed his foe, 135 to 132½ pounds. A crowd of about 2,000 saw the televised bout.

Pirates Nip Colts 4-3; Mets Romp 8-0

Cubs' Rookie Hurler Slaughter Wins 2nd

By MURRAY CHASS Associated Press Sports Writer Sterling Slaughter sounds as if he should sit behind a huge desk at the First National Bank during the day and throw society cocktail parties at night.

Slaughter, however, works for the Chicago Cubs where the only parties he throws are pitching parties.

The Milwaukee Braves are convinced he's a poor host.

Slaughter, in only his second year of professional baseball, stopped the Braves on six hits, 2, for the second time in a week Friday night.

The victory, his second without a loss, marked the first time he's completed a game in the majors. He came out of the bullpen for his first start last Saturday and held the Braves to one hit in seven innings before getting relief help in the eighth. The Cubs won the game 2-0.

The 22-year-old right-hander was signed last June off the Arizona State University campus where he earned a spot on the College All-America team. He pitched for Amarillo and led the Texas League with his 3.00 earned run average.

His latest performance reduced his Chicago ERA to 1.73 and helped the Cubs to their eighth victory in 10 starts since losing to the New York Mets 19-1, May 26.

Elsewhere in the NL, San Francisco squeezed by Philadelphia -3 in 11 innings, the Mets blanked Los Angeles 8-0, Pittsburgh nipped Houston 4-3 and Cincinnati edged St. Louis 5-4.

MORE MORE

Slaughter struck out eight and walked three as the Cubs handed the Braves their sixth loss in seven games. Billy Williams increased his league-leading average two points to .413 with two singles in four at bats.

Billy Cowan belted three singles and drove in two runs while Joe Amalfitano slugged a two-run homer in the third for the Cubs.

Harvey Kuenn's single and Chuck Hiller's triple knocked in two runs for the Giants in the 11th against Jack Baldschun. Orlando Cepeda's sixth homer had tied the game 3-3 in the eighth.

Cookie Rojas scored all three Phillies' runs, two of them after hitting doubles in the first and the third.

Galen Cisco pitched his first complete game victory since Sept. 21, 1961, limiting the Dodgers to four hits. It was his first decision since losing the 23-inning game against the Giants last Sunday.

Ron Fairly's error on Cisco's grounder led to seven unearned runs in the third. Ed Kranepool and Charlie Smith hit back-to-back homers in the inning, Kranepool's coming with two on.

The Pirates rallied for three runs with two out in the ninth, the winning run scoring on Roberto Clemente's single. Don Clendenon and Manny Mota each singled home a run before the winning hit. Al Spangler's two-run single had put the Colts into a 3-1 lead in the fifth.

The Pirates' rally spoiled Don Nottebart's chance for his first victory after seven losses.

The Reds also came from behind in the ninth. Deron Johnson slashed a two-run pinch single, climaxing a four-run outburst. The Cardinals contributed two errors to the rally.

Glen Hobbie, acquired three days ago from the Cubs, had a four-hit 4-0 shutout until the eighth when Vada Pinson singled in the Reds' first run. Hobbie and Bill White homered for the Cardinals.

Says Barber Won't Be Thrown At

Twins' Pilot Clears Air About Bean-Ball

By The Associated Press Sam Mele says he isn't after anyone's scalp. Chuck Dressen, however, may have to keep a close watch on his.

Mele, manager of the Minnesota Twins, apologized Friday night for a bean-ball threat made against Baltimore pitcher Steve Barber, then watched his club win a gopher ball battle from the Orioles 11-5.

When the teams met in Baltimore two weeks ago, Twins' rookie Tony Oliva was beaned by a Barber pitch. At the time, Mele was quoted as saying, "The next time we get a chance to throw at Barber, he is going down."

Barber is due to pitch for the Orioles today, but Mele has cleared the air.

"I was darn mad at that time," he said in apologizing, "but I shouldn't have said it. We just want to beat Baltimore."

Dressen's having trouble beating anyone. His Detroit Tigers went out and lost their sixth straight, 4-3 to the Chicago White Sox, just hours after Dressen said the pat on the back he received from club owner John Fetzer was not a vote of confidence.

Dressen met with Fetzer Friday to talk about the Tigers, currently languishing in eighth place, 11 games out of first.

"I'm the manager of the Detroit Tigers and there's little more I can say, except that I wasn't a vote of confidence. I don't like votes of confidence and I'm glad Mr. Fetzer didn't word it as such."

And that's where Charley stands today.

The White Sox stand in first place, their victory shooting them to the top spot in the American League, 23 percentage points ahead of the Orioles.

Elsewhere, Dick Stuart hit his third grand slam of the season as Boston crushed Kansas City 14-7, the Los Angeles Angels nipped the New York Yankees 3-2 and Washington defeated Cleveland 5-3.

Zoilo Versalles, who had hit only one homer in 47 previous games this season, hit two for the Twins, driving in three runs. Jimmie Hall also hit a homer and collected three runs-batted-in as Minnesota snapped Baltimore's six-game winning streak. Three Orioles hit homers, Brooks Robinson, Jackie Brandt and Boog Powell connecting against winner Lee Stange.

The White Sox penetrated Detroit's ragged defense for four runs in the first three innings and that was it. The White Sox scored twice in the second as third baseman Jake Wood contributed a wild throw and let a fly ball drop between him and shortstop Dick McAuliffe. Al Wei scored Chicago's final run on Ed Rakow's wild pitch after getting to third on an error.

Stuart and Lee Thomas, starting his first game since he was acquired from the Angels, hit homers in a nine-run second inning that put the game away for the Red Sox. Thomas also collected two singles. Rocky Colavito, George Alusik and Ed Charles homered for the Athletics. Colavito's was his 14th.

Lou Clinton, acquired by Los Angeles in the Thomas trade, also collected a homer and two singles for his new mates. Jim Fregosi drove in the deciding run for the Angels with a sixth-inning sacrifice fly after Yankee starter Ralph Terry threw home on a bunt, trying to nail Ed Kirkpatrick. Kirkpatrick, however, had never left third Fregosi brought him home.

Jim King hit a two-run homer in the fourth, putting the Senators ahead to stay and they clinched it by scoring two more in the seventh with the aid of a throwing error by Max Alvis.

Eight walks, three hit-batters, and an error also contributed to the 15 runs.

KIRBY TINSLEY blasted a home run for Bricker's (0-4) in the third. The losers picked up three runs in the initial inning on three walks a single by Tom Fisher and a double by Scott Riffle.

Down 9-7, Scott's rallied for three runs in the seventh as Tom Capel walked, and Ken Stein and Larry Kachner each hit singles.

Kachner, who had three hits, and Ted Marroulis belted back-to-back home runs in the five-run fifth inning for the winners.

Tom Kornbau and Don Hipple collected two hits apiece for Petrucci's (1-3).

Chuck Joseph socked a pair of home runs and a single, and Chuck Cushman collected a double and two singles to spark Famous Market to its first victory of the year.

Bob Erhart had two hits for CIO 3372 (0-2).

Sekely (2-0) scored in every inning. Dan Papic belted a two-run home run in the first frame. Mike Palmer had a triple and two singles to pace the winners. John Milnarick clouted a triple in the three-run fourth.

Ron Albright had two of the losers three hits. Dave Greene doubled for Farmer's (1-1) in the fifth.

With the score deadlocked 3-3, Elks (1-1) picked up six runs in the fifth with the key hits coming from Cline, Henon, Bica, Smith and Lowry.

Brantingham's two-run home run tied the score 3-3 for Shaffer Ford (0-2) in the fourth.

With 20 batters going to the plate in the third inning, Hunts Independent Union tallied 15 runs as it rolled to a 21-6 over Brickers in a Class G baseball game at Centennial Park Friday.

Scott's Sports rallied for three runs in the top of the seventh to nip Petrucci's 10-9 for its first victory of the campaign at Memorial Park.

FAMOUS MARKET chalked up 16 runs in the first five innings while the losers CIO 3372 had to wait until the seventh to get its only run of the contest in Class E competition.

A home run gave Sekely a 3-0 lead in the initial frame, they then went on to knock off Farmer's Bank 13-5, while Elks ignited for six runs in the fifth to beat Shaffer Ford 9-3 in Class F action played at Memorial Park.

Moose handed Hobbycraft its first loss of the season 14-8, Stark Colonial Attic trimmed Cherry Hill Furniture 19-14, and Quaker Manufacturing clipped Jaycees 13-10 for its initial win.

Key hits for Hunt's (2-2) in the big-third frame were triples Chuck Leaf and Ted Todd and singles by Bob Herron and Todd, who was batting for the second time.

Strickland had to crow about as he watched the Indians drop their third game in a row.

It's about the first time this year that Vic has pulled the ball like that," Strickland said Friday night after the Tribe lost a 5-3 decision to Washington.

The 5-foot-7, 150-pound left-handed hitter, back in center field after a long bout with a sore arm, has been hitting the ball lately to left field, or trying to beat out bunts.

Against the Senators Davalillo pulled a single to right in the third inning and slammed his first homer of the season in the eighth with one aboard. It came after Dick Howser doubled.

Those hits felt real good," Davalillo said afterward in the clubhouse. Maybe I'll get started now."

Davalillo is now batting .238, with 25 hits in 105 at bats. Outside of Davalillo's showing, Strickland described the Tribe's effort as "too little and too late."

"We should have scored four runs in the first two innings and chased their starter out of there," he added.

Cleveland got a run in the first without a hit. Howser walked, stole second, took third on a long fly and scored on a balk by Washington's Buster Narum, the winner who is now 5-3. Narum needed help, however, from Jim Duckworth.

Jack Kralick (5-1) tries to end the Tribe's losing streak Saturday against Washington's Bennie Daniels (5-3).

3-Year-Old Horse Seeks Triple-Crown Today

Hardtack Given Credit For Much Of Northern Dancer's Success

By ORLO ROBERTSON

Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Jockey Bill Hartack is being given much of the credit for the success of Northern Dancer, who went after the triple crown for 3-year-olds today needing a victory in the 96th running of the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes at Aqueduct.

But, without taking anything away from the fine horsemanship of the controversial rider, the name of the jockey after Northern Dancer in the race results could well be Ron Tuccillo, Paul Bohenko, James Fitzsimmons, Manuel Ycaza or Willie Shoemaker.

Few top-flight horses have had as many riders as the Canadian-owned Dancer, who tangled with seven others of his age in the 1½ miles of the richest Belmont at 3:50 p.m. EST. With eight starters it had a gross value of $154,600 with $110,850 going to the winner. A victory for the Dancer would boost his bankroll to $625,922 and permit him to join a select group of Triple Crown winners composed of Citation, Assault, Count Fleet, Whirlaway, War Admiral, Omaha, Gallant Fox and Sir Barton.

Northern Dancer, the 4½ favorite whose string of seven straight victories include the Flamingo, Florida Derby, Blue Grass Stakes, Kentucky Derby and Preakness, has been ridden by seven different jockeys in carving out a career record of 14 victories, two seconds and a third in 17 starts. All except one, Bob Ussery, won with him.

Turcotte, Bohenko and Fitzsimmons were aboard in winning efforts in Canada before the son of Nearctic-Natalma shifted his speed to United States tracks last November. Ycaza, Ussery and Shoemaker took turns at handling his reins before Hartack took over prior to the Kentucky Derby when Shoe decided he would rather be up on Hill Rise. Hartack went into today's Belmont with a string of three triumphs aboard the Horatio Luro-trained equine midget.

Neither has Hill Rise, owned by George A. Pope Jr.'s El Peco Ranch of California, lacked for diversion when it comes to riders. He has been ridden by six different jockeys, winning under Don Richardson, Clay Brinson, Don Pierce and Shoemaker. The big West Coast ace went into the Belmont with a record of nine victories, one second and three thirds in 13 starts.

Both Quadrangle and Roman Brother, co-third choices at 8-1, have seen plenty of riders. Quadrangle has had six astride him and Roman Brother has had five different riders.

The four outsiders in the race — Orientalist, Brave Lad, Determined Man and Shook — also have had a variety of riders.

Matter of Fact

The Declaration of Independence was not signed on the Fourth of July. The day on which the final separation of the 13 colonies from Great Britain was officially voted was July 2, 1776. The last signer, Thomas McKean, of Delaware, did not affix his signature until 1777.

2 Teams Tie For 1st In Church Loop

A showdown between undefeated Emmanuel Lutheran and First Assembly of God for the Church (slo-pitch) League leadership a week from Monday appears almost certain at the rate the two teams are going now. Both squads picked up their third straight victories in competition at Kelley Field last night.

EMMANUEL LUTHERAN handed Phillips Christian its third loss in a row 18-4, while First Assembly of God knocked off First Friends (1-1) 11-7.

Ron Eichler had a home run and two singles to spark Emmanuel. The winners chalked up eight runs in the initial inning to put the game out of reach.

Winning pitcher Jack Krepps had two triples. Andy Piriak and John Wagner each had two singles.

Norm Whinnery, Al Coburn and Bob Adams had two hits apiece for the losers.

Down 7-6, First Assembly of God rallied for three runs in the sixth, then iced the contest with two more in the seventh.

STEVE TAYLOR socked a two-run home in the first inning. Bob Hutton had a triple and two singles. Bob Demes and Gary Hutton each had two hits. First Friends tallied six runs in the fifth on a walk, error and singles by Carl Shinn, Rick Gregg, Tom Crawford, Ralph Price and Jack Rea, who also had a pair of doubles.

Legion Opener Set For Sunday

In other tilts, East Liverpool travels to Carrollton, and Columbiana is at Lisbon.

On Thursday Salem makes its first road trip, when it travels to meet East Liverpool.

Manager Pete Sanders has been grooming 12 veterans for the opener. The players returning from last season, which saw Salem lose to East Liverpool in a play-off for the county title, are Don Kendrick, Wayne "Bink" Washington, George Begalla, Dick Switzer, Hilton Moffett, Dick Barrett, Jim Morrison, Ron Parlonteri, Rich Parlonteri, Larry Lance, Tracy Bissell, and Dave Thomas.

New faces this season are Jim Garrett, Kirk Moser, Dyer Scott and Wilt.

Sport Facts

Of the 12 horses in this year's Kentucky Derby, five were ridden during their careers by Willie Shoemaker.

Five horses in this year's Kentucky Derby came up to the race off a victory.

Six of the 12 horses in this year's Kentucky Derby came up to the race with earnings of more than $100,000.

Three members of the American League All-Star baseball team of 1963 are playing with other clubs this year. They are Nellie Fox, Leon Wagner and The first time Hill Rise ran he was 40 to 1 and finished third. He was 7 to 5 favorite in the Kentucky Derby and finished second.

A word from THERON at the Country Store

I am going to be away for a few weeks. I intend to send some articles back from time to time. If you see in my space here. (This place reserved for Theron Country Store) keep coming to the store. My help will take good care of you. When I am away they always go all out to see to it the place runs better. They make it look like I am not necessary.

I try to do very little when I am there so if I am gone things will keep right on running.

Finding the Way

The Eternal Values

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.

Spring and summer fashions are advertised everywhere. The cut of the brim or the slant of the lapel, the hem of the skirt or the clothes that cover or don't—all of them are important. St. Paul said that "the fashions of the world pass away" but most persons are now inclined to listen to the 17th century author who said: "As good be out of the world as out of fashion."

NOW THE MATTER IS far more important than the fashions of the moment. A foundation recently appropriated enormous sums of money in order to retrain engineers who had been away from college for a decade. This is an effort to keep these highly skilled men from becoming obsolescent. Technical science moves so rapidly that it becomes necessary to know what is happening tomorrow in order to understand today.

Our paradox is simply that we understand the need in technical skills and ignore it in human relations.

THINK OF the numbers of citizens who are willing to espouse 1864 ethics in regard to racial tensions while they live in 1964! These aren't the days of Uncle Tom and the Civil War. We ought to keep up-to-date! So a person who would not be caught in public with last year's dress may mouth an idea which is hopelessly antiquated! Too many of us talk about the good old days without wanting to bring any of the "goodness" of those days into the present.

Eternal values are always contemporary, alive in the present as well as the past. That's why they are "eternal."

JESUS INSISTED that heaven and earth would pass away as surely as last year's fashions but he also emphasized that the word of God would not pass away. It was the old idea: It was the new situation.

It was the eternal principle; it was the contemporary understanding.

It's about time to keep up to date in our human relations. Events outstrip our understanding and suddenly our own situation reveals our moral bankruptcy.

New occasions teach new duties:

Time makes ancient good uncouth;

They must upward still and onward

Who would keep abreast of truth.

There is an eternal truth; we need to know that in terms of today. We need to keep up-to-date with a God of our present instead of worshipping the outgrown practices of another time.

The Doctor Says

By Dr. WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT

Health Questions And Answers

Since my report of lupus erythematosus, many readers have written asking about a cure. Sad to say, this is a disease which cannot be cured. But, like many other diseases, it can be controlled with judicious treatment so that the victim can enjoy normal living with a minimum of discomfort.

Dr. Brandstadt living with a minimum of discomfort.

This requires careful adjustment of the dosage of such potent drugs as chloroquine, hydroxychloroquine, and amodiaquin. Short courses of prednisone are often helpful. These drugs cannot be obtained without a physician's prescription.

Q—Is it harmful to take Darvon regularly? It relaxes me and helps me to sleep.

A—Darvon is a brand of dextropropoxyphene. It is a mild and relatively safe depressant and pain reliever. In the usually prescribed dosage it is not harmful. It is not habit-forming.

Q—I have a thyroid deficiency and cortisone has helped me but it has also caused hair to grow on my face. Why is this?

A—This is one of the more common side effects of the long continued use of cortisone.

Q—Will the frequent use of enemas or laxatives cause cancer?

A—No, but by interfering with the normal digestive processes they may lead to colitis and chronic indigestion.

Q—Is Cytran a tranquilizer? If not, what is it for?

A—Cytran is a combination of hormones and drugs. It is used chiefly for premenstrual tension. In this sense it is a type of tranquilizer.

Q—My father died of diabetes at 74. My 24-year-old son has had repeated urine tests — all negative for sugar. What worries me is that he is always thirsty. He can drink a quart of lemonade or ice tea at one sitting. Does this mean that he will get diabetes in later life? Is so much iced fluid bad for his stomach?

A—If your son's urine was negative for albumin and sugar, he does not have nephritis or diabetes. If his urine is pale and has a low specific gravity (closely approximating that of water) he probably has diabetes insipidus. On the other hand this thirst may be a personal peculiarity with no significance.

The fluids should not harm his stomach. Eating an excessive amount of sweets would be more likely to lead to sugar diabetes in later life than the drinking of a large amount of fluid.

Beloit

Charles McNatt of Dayton was a visitor here. Mr. and Mrs. Cary Bates of Minerva and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Cunen of Maximo visited the McNatts.

Mr. and Mrs. Dellious Longabardi have returned from California and are making their home temporarily with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Clay.

Mrs. Paul Israel and sons have returned to their home in Texas following a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cox while Capt. Paul Israel was participating in the 30-day Air Force and Army maneuver "Desert Strike" in the Mohave Desert.

Present for family gatherings during the visit were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Israel of Alliance, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Baker of Canton, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Bye of Damascus and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Israel.

Free as a Bird

No worries, no responsibilities! A lot of us would gladly trade places with Wendy, just to share that wonderful "joy of living" that children feel so often, and adults experience so rarely.

"But what is there to be happy about?" you may be thinking. "Maybe Wendy has no worries, but I certainly have!"

Perhaps we forget that this world is in God's hands . . . and that, with God, nothing is impossible. We wear ourselves out seeking human solutions to our problems, when Divine help is always available if we will only ask.

Try it. Try bringing your worries and doubts to God this Sunday in your neighborhood Church. Hear God's promise of guidance and comfort for all who will give their lives to him in childlike trust. And let the Holy Spirit fill your troubled heart with lasting joy.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL...
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
